A reader explores interest in an article by reading an abstract first. An abstract is a summary of ideas or research project that has to be carefully drafted to convey the desirable message in a terse manner. It generally includes motivation, problem statement, approach, results and conclusion of the study, preferably in the same sequence.

This 1.5 day workshop will include sessions on consolidating thoughts, art of drafting abstract (Short and extended), narration of abstract, and technical writing norms. In addition, a session will be conducted on effective design of posters. Example exercise for abstract writing and poster making will be conducted, which will be followed by peer review and feedback.
