Entry into an Engineering College is a great transition in a student's life. Some of the common problems among the students are: Anxiety, Concentration, Relationships, Missing classes, Conflicts, Exam Stress, Homesickness, Language Problems, Loneliness, Procrastination, Sleep Disorders and Time Management. Thus, it is extremely important to have a counseling service, which can ensure the welfare of the students by providing them appropriate advices in terms of emotional, academic and financial assistance. This workshop will provide the strategies appropriate for an effective counseling service. In addition, role of students, faculty members and counselors in the counseling service will be discussed.
